

Assessment of Significant Habitat trees at Scrivener Road Gravel Pit

Project area.

R.E.Johnstone and T.Kirkby

The purpose of this survey was to assess a number of trees, especially those over 50 cm diameter at breast height (DBH), within the proposed disturbance area to identify any nesting sites for black cockatoos (i.e. Forest Red-tailed Black Cockatoo Calyptorhynchus banksii naso, Baudin's Cockatoo Calyptorhynchus baudinii and Carnaby's Cockatoo Calyptorhynchus latirostris in and adjacent to the proposed disturbance area.

The site was visited on 23 July 2015 and 22 October 2015. All trees over 50 cm at DBH were marked and 137 trees deemed trees with habitat potential (large hollows) were inspected with binoculars for hollows with signs of use by cockatoos e.g. wear around the hollow, chewing, scarring and scratch marks on trunks and branches. Trees with possible nest sites were scratched and raked with a pole to flush any sitting birds from hollow and we recorded any birds in the area for signs of breeding including males making breeding call and males feeding females. We also searched for any old or recent evidence of cockatoos feeding in the proposed disturbance area and these sites were logged with hand held GPS.

Results

Of the 137 trees inspected 4 were deemed 'significant' trees i.e. trees with cockatoo nest hollows. Two Jarrah Eucalyptus marginata trees (Numbers 66 and 78 see spreadsheet) contained hollows showing recent evidence of use by cockatoos.

A Marri Corymbia calophylla (Tree Number 286) also showed evidence of recent use by cockatoos (probably Forest Red-tailed Black Cockatoos). Another Marri (Tree Number 130) contained a hollow previously used by cockatoos but more recently taken over by feral European Honeybees Apis mellifera.

At 0935 hrs a pair flew into the proposed disturbance area from the east of the gravel pit and the male fed the female several times before she preened herself and began feeding on Jarrah seeds. Judging from this behaviour these birds were breeding in the area.

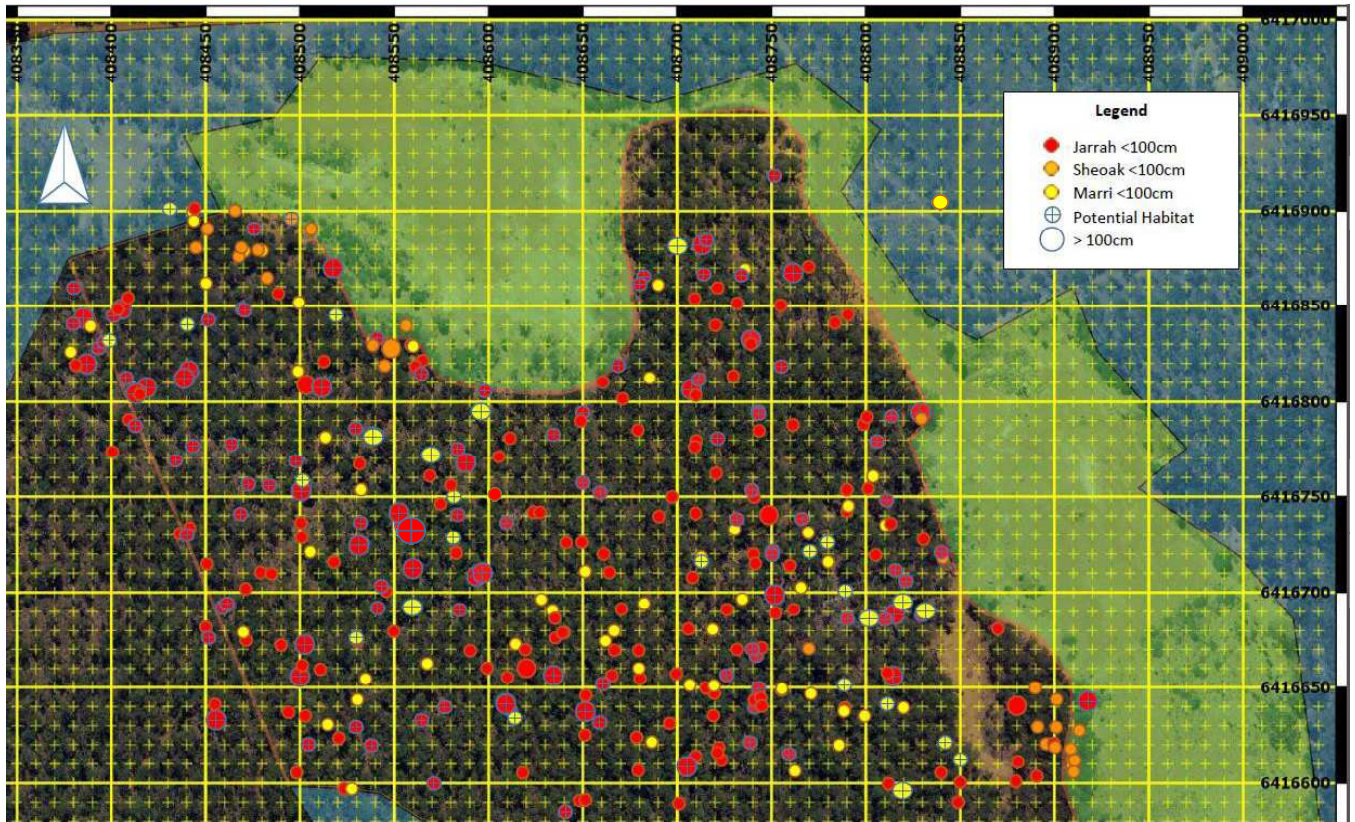

Both old and recent evidence of Forest Red-tailed Black Cockatoos feeding on Jarrah and Marri seeds were located in and around the proposed disturbance area.

Conclusion

The four nest sites are near the edge of the proposed project area and if possible these should be retained and some follow-up monitoring could be carried out to determine hollow usage. It is noteworthy that two of the hollows are in large Jarrah trees as Marri is by far the most preferred nest tree in the Jarrah-Marri Forest (see Johnstone, Kirkby and Sarti 2013).

The clearing of the proposed site could impact on the availability or quality of feeding habitat for black cockatoos especially Forest Red-tailed Black Cockatoos within the area and could impact on the local population.

We would suggest that the effects of clearing would be ameliorated by revegetation of much of the existing gravel pit with plants that will provide future food resources for cockatoos.
